SCHOOL COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

in the first of those extincted to dead removed these

. To the Citizens of Rochester thing denoting year same

The Superintending School Committee submit their annual report for the year ending March, 1874.

The schools throughout the town have enjoyed well nigh universal prosperity and success, with scarcely a ripple of insubordination to mar the general peace and harmony.

For the most part, teachers of character, culture, ability and aptness have been placed over the schools, and marked and decisive progress has resulted. Their influence has tended to develope the moral as well as the intellectual character of their pupils.

Too great care cannot be exercised by Prudential Committees, in the selection of teachers. Let the moral and intellectual training of the youth be intrusted only to persons of culture and character; to those who have a heart in their work and realize the responsibility resting upon them; those who are not satisfied with present attainments and content to plod along the old time ruts; but who, on the other hand, are constantly perusing educational works, and ever on the alert to learn new and better methods of school management and instruction; those who, with Galileo, have discovered that "the world moves," and are bound to keep pace with that movement.

All bias and favor should be laid aside, and a careful discrimination used, and those only employed whom nature and culture have adapted to this honorable and responsible calling. When such are secured, and they are laboring arduously for the mental and moral improvement of the youth, let them receive the earnest and cordial co-operation of all citizens, and let it not be said, "theirs is a thankless task."

Irregularity of attendance—from truancy and other causes—is an evil severely felt, especially in our village schools. It tends to demoralize a school, to break up and multiply classes, and to cause a general spirit of indifference. It effectually prevents all thoroughness on the part of those addicted to it, and renders their schooling well nigh worthless and to specially appoint of the schooling well nigh worthless and the schooling well nigh worthless and the school of th

We are glad to report that at East Rochester and the Gonic, during the last term, a marked improvement has been effected; owing, no doubt to the efficiency of the teachers. Parents and guardians should do all in their power to correct this bane of our school system. They should heartily co-operate with the teachers—exert a positive influence in this direction at home; also, if possible, frequently visit the school room, and in a direct and social manner manifest their interest to remedy this evil as well as to promote, the efficiency of the school; for it is a general rule that the interest and approval, or lack of interest, and disapproval of the parents will produce a corresponding effect on the children.

One of the many advantages to be derived from a thorough system of grading, is its tendency to prevent the evil of inconstancy of attendance. The desire of the scholar to maintain his standing and avoid the mortification of an assignment to a lower class and less honorable position in the school, forms a strong incentive, urging him to punctuality no, less than diligence and thoroughness.

The Committee believe a high school accessible alike to all the pupils in town, upon the attainment of proper qualifications, is much needed. Aside from the direct benefits to the school itself, a new motive to exertion would be presented to the scholars of the lower grades of schools, and their ambition quickened by the desire to attain to such qualifications as would enable them to enter the high school. Teachers of the lower grades would also be prompted to be more systematic and exhaustive in their instruction.

The economy of educating our children at home, and the fact that their morals can be more carefully looked to than when at distant schools, should be mentioned in favor of such a school.

No new school-houses have been erected during the year, and little has been done for the improvement of old ones. The school-house, however, in district No. 14 has been quite thoroughly repaired within and without; and its appearance, convenience and comfort much increased.

The house in district No. 9 is entirely unfit for use; and we are pleased to learn that steps are being taken to replace it with a new one...

A word in relation to the school-room in district No. 7. Seventy or more scholars of all grades of advancement; from the alphabet to the higher English studies are all gathered into one room. No one teacher can successfully manage them under such circumstances; and the conveniences for an assistant are poor indeed.

In a republican form of, government, the people will be represented by their kind. The stream cannot rise higher than the fountain. If ignorance prevails, its attendants—vice and depravity—will find their way into the counsels of the nation, and endanger our free institutions. As, then, we value these, let a liberal and cheerful support be given to our common schools.

Furthermore, it is acknowledged that in the direct ratio that popular knowledge increases, virtue, competence and happiness prevails; and as it decreases, poverty, vice and crime abound. If this be so, economy demands that our schools be carefully cherished and fostered, for it is allowed to be more expensive to punish the crimes of the people than to educate them.

Herewith is presented tabular statements pertaining to the several schools and school districts.

HENRY KIMBALL, Superintending D. J. SMITH, School CHARLES BLAZO, Committee.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE FOR DISTRICT No. 8

Present their annual report of the condition and success of the Schools therein, for the year ending March, 1874.

At the last annual meeting of the district, the committee were instructed to thoroughly grade all its schools. They have tried to fulfill those instructions faithfully. Every school has been as thoroughly graded as could be done in one year. But though not yet perfect as the committee desire and hope to see them in the future, fruit enough has been reaped already, to convince all concerned, that it has wrought a great and desirable reform.

The teaching has become systematic, and the instructions exhaustive; and thus each grade lays a firm foundation for the next. Nothing is done superficially, but every step in advance is thoroughly mastered. Consequently the scholar, thoroughly conversant with all he has gone over, makes more easy and rapid progress in the future.

The evils of truincy and irregularity of attendance, have been much abated. Scholars soon learn that such system and regulations demand constant attendance; if they would keep pace with their classes and avoid the humility of being assigned to one of lower grade. Class feeling and sympathy become very strong also, and have a decided tendency to correct the evils of an irregular attendance. The examination of these schools at the close of the year, demonstrate the utility of a graded system.

Thoroughness, and complete mastery of studies pursued by the several classes, was nearly universal. Teachers and scholars alike seemed prepared to give a commendable account of their year's work. A general enthusiasm pervades all departments of the schools, extending to parents and citizens, who came to the examinations in unusual numbers, reaching in the aggregate, one hundred and thirty. This success is due largely to the zeal, and fidelity of our teachers. district has been blessed with a corps of teachers, that for hobility of character, culture, ability and aptness to teach, are seldom equaled. They have ever been watchful to acquire fresh knowledge in the methods of instruction and management of schools, and used it wisely to benefit them. They have been thoroughly alive to the importance of their work, and have keen sense of their responsibility:

Nor would we withhold from the Prudential Committee that meed of commendation justly due his earnest efforts, in securing so able and efficient a corps of instructors. He has ever given his cordial co-operation and done what lay in his power to advance the interests of our schools.

The Superintendent of a neighboring city says, that "more room is a sure sign of present and increasing prosperity." If so, we are blessed with a large measure of success; for we are sadly in need of a new school-house. Already we have one more school than rooms; and very soon shall have two or three, unless the district come to our rescue, and provide better and ampler school accommodations. The want of such has already retarded the progress of the schools and to a

The school-house on Wakefield street is not fitted to the present wants "Litis badly out of repair, cold and unhealthy. The room used for the Grammar school is entirely inadequate to its wants, and illy suited to any grade of scholars. The seats occupy so much of the room as to leave little space for class exercises. The extent of blackboard is small and insufficient, with no chance for enlargement. And this, for a class of but pils who, more than any other, needs ample blackboard accommodations. In short, the house is entirely unit for the purposes of education. Has selies has and in

The same is true of the house on Elm street. It is unhealthy in location, being beside a marshy bog, from which the stench arising in summer, from decayed attended imal and vegetable matter, is very offensive, and must be exceedingly deleterious to the health of the pupils. Its internal appearance is also very uninviting. The committee are of opinion that this house, and that on Wakefield street should give place, at the earliest possible moment, to a better and larger school building, well and pleasantly located. The rooms should be large, convenient, well lighted and ventilated, inclosing capacious and attractive grounds. There is an educating and moral power, for good or evil, in the character of the buildings and their surroundings. Fine buildings, pleasant school rooms, neatly arranged and properly furnished, and comfortable, facilitate education, aid instruction and discipline, allure the pupils to habits of order and neatness, appeal to, and develope in them a sense of fitness and beauty, refine their feelings and help to restrain from moral debasement.

Our Primary schools are susceptible of much improvement. The old way of requiring small children to sit all day, with little to occupy the attention of their restive natures, is passing away, and a more humane system is being adopted. Educators are understanding better the child's nature, and that its mind must be actively employed, or it becomes restless, weary and noisy, and the school room, and all about it, obnoxious. The healthy child is inquisitive, active and imitative. If activity, and a desire to do or learn some new thing, is essential to its health and happiness, this propensity should be gratified in schools. Its nature should be consulted, and the various school exercises adapted to its physical, intellectual and moral growth. The little scholar in the alphabet should have slate and pencil, as well as his primer; and when he begins to learn to read, should also be taught to draw letters and words; and if he should have the genius to draw the picture of a man, horse, tree, or house, it is hoped his efforts will not be rewarded with the "oil of birch." Teachers should strive to interest, and give profitable direction to those active minds, rather than perniciously restrain them. How many, when called to the stern duties of life, have wished that their imitative faculties had been cultivated, in youth, to the extent of being able to draw readily and correctly the plan of a house, to sketch a leaf, a plant or landscape? An obstacle to this needed reform is, that few of the seats in our Primary schools, are furnished with desks on which children may rest their slates. A little outlay would remedy this; and we feel sure the district would reap results amply repaying them for the small expense required. We rejoice in the belief, that the citizens who have shown so lively an interest in our schools, and during the year have given their cordial approval of the efforts made for their advancement, are willing to do cheerfully what is necessary to promote the usefulness and prosperity of them in the future.

Tabular statements of the conditions of the schools are herewith submitted.
